Applicants must not provide any benefits (as defined by the Prevention of Bribery Ordinance, Chapter 201 of the Laws of Hong Kong) to school employees, board members, or any parent or student representatives on relevant committees. Providing such benefits may constitute an offense and render the contract void. If hired, the appointee (individual or company representative) must undergo a 'Sexual Conviction Record Check'; failure to provide this record allows the school to cancel the contract and hold the appointee legally liable for any resulting losses.

The school reserves the right to cancel the appointee's qualifications in any circumstance, especially if there are concerns about their behavior posing a threat to national security. The school may immediately terminate the contract if the appointee's actions may endanger national security, if continuing their employment is detrimental to national security, or if the school reasonably believes such situations are imminent.
